Junior League of Charlotte participates in the inaugural “On The Table CLT: Our Charlotte Story”

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - On October 25, 2017, the Junior League of Charlotte, Inc. (JLC), as part of the inaugural On The Table CLT, will join more than 5,000 Charlotteans and thousands of others from ten additional cities across the country to engage in conversations on how to “make our community more connected, dynamic, and opportunity-rich.” This event will encourage attendees to generate ideas that positively influence awareness within our communities, while learning how to identify and leverage “social capital” personally and within the community.

“The Junior League of Charlotte is committed to improving our community, from serving with partner organizations to learning more about the issues our community faces.

We are honored to help host a day of conversations about issues impacting all aspects of Charlotte, and look forward to breaking bread with our neighbors from all walks of life,” said Junior League President Arina Kirk.

The Junior League of Charlotte understands that engagement is action. League members will come together to learn from and with each other at the JLC building, working to impact the Charlotte community through strong, vibrant, and transformational conversations. The event is open to JLC members and their guests.
